Cody J. Lewis Achieves Board Certification in Construction Law

Cody J. Lewis

Our congratulations to Cody J. Lewis for earning his Board Certification in Construction Law from the Texas Board of Legal Specialization. Board Certification is a mark of excellence and demonstrates substantial, relevant experience in a select practice area.

Of the over 100,000 attorneys licensed to practice in Texas, there are only 152 Board Certified specialists in Construction Law. Of those 152, Cody is the only Board Certified Construction Law specialist in Denton County. Board Certified attorneys earn the right to represent themselves publicly as “specialists” in their select area of law. In fact, they are the only attorneys allowed to do so by the State Bar of Texas.

With over fourteen years of experience, Cody has focused his practice primarily on construction law. After beginning his legal practice in Dallas in 2010, he joined Hayes, Berry, White & Vanzant in Denton in 2016, where he continues to enjoy the practice of law through serving his clients.

Before becoming a licensed attorney, Cody gained valuable hands-on experience in the construction industry, working with an HVAC subcontractor/supplier and his uncle’s commercial and residential general contracting business in the Dallas-Fort Worth metroplex. This field experience uniquely complements his legal expertise.

Cody represents a wide range of construction industry participants, including municipalities, owners, developers, contractors and suppliers. He is well-versed in handling both routine and complex construction litigation, as well as contract negotiation and drafting.

We are proud of Cody’s accomplishments and look forward to his continued success in the field of Construction Law.
